124 - Rocket pioneer signed 1965 BALLOON riders at the European Meeting Murren Flown Signed by German rocketeer Nebel WW1 Pilot. 29 8 65 Murren Internat Alpine Balloon Sport Postmark. Flown in Balloon riders at the European Meeting Murren Flown Signed by German rocketeer Nebel. World War I fighter pilot with Ja 5, the noted German rocket pioneer, recorded how he wanted to increase the distance at which HA could be attacked. He added two stovepipes under each wing, installed four signal rockets and attached ignition cables connected to a firing button, later an assistant hired by Oberth to fabricate the rocket. Rudolf Nebel, (1894 1978) German rocket enthusiast. Worked for Oberth; helped found VfR; built largest prewar German test rockets. Work shut down by government in 1934. Did not work on rockets during WW2. Promoted civilian rebirth of German rocketry in 1950's. Rudolf Nebel played a key role in promoting early rocketry efforts in Germany. As part of publicity for the film Frau im Mond, director Fritz Lang retained rocket pioneer Hermann Oberth as technical consultant. Lang provided Oberth with funds to build and launch a liquid propellant rocket to publicise the film. One of the assistants hired by Oberth to fabricate the rocket was Rudolph Nebel, a World War I fighter pilot with (unfortunately) little actual engineering experience. Oberth's project did not produce a rocket in time for the film opening, but Nebel had gotten the spaceflight 'bug'. He was looked down upon by his fellow space enthusiasts due to a perceived lack of technical ability. But it was Nebel that played a key role in organising the VfR; in leasing the Rakete Flugplatz rocket test ground in Berlin; in making the practical decisions that finally led to the society testing the Mirak 'Minimum Rocket'; in obtaining funding for the testing of the large scale Magdeburg rocket; and finally in arranging for the German Army to back further rocketry development. This paradoxically led to Von Braun and most of Nebel's compatriots being hired away by the German Army. Nebel continued with private experiments until shut down by a German government prohibition on further private rocket development in 1934. His colleagues, in recognition of his key role, arranged for him to receive royalties from a key rocket patent from 1937. After the second world war, the old German enthusiasm for rocketry was stirring. Nebel was one of the few German rocket pioneers who did not leave the country to work for one of the conquering powers. Despite the allied prohibition on aerospace research, Nebel, together with engineers Karl Poggensee and Albert Puellenberg, began renewed German work on rockets for peaceful purposes. They participated in the first meetings of the new International Astronautical Federation in Paris in 1950 and London in 1951. Nebel gave a lecture on rocketry and space travel in Cuxhaven on 6 April 1951. This eventually led to the establishment of 'Spaceport Cuxhaven' and a series of launches from 1958 1964 that reached into outer space. Then, once again, further private German space launches were prohibited. Born 1894 Died in 1978. Good condition Est. £16 - 18

Black & White Photo size 4 ¾ by 6 ½ inches Signed by Valeri Nikolayevich Kubasov born 7 January 1935 in Vyazniki is a former Soviet cosmonaut who flew on two missions in the Soyuz programme as a flight engineer: Soyuz 6 and Soyuz 19 (the Apollo Soyuz mission), and commanded Soyuz 36 in the Intercosmos programme. On 21 July 1975, the Soyuz 7K TM module used for ASTP landed in Kazakhstan at 5:51 p.m. and Kubasov was the first to exit the craft. He was also involved in the development of the Mir space station. He retired from the Soviet space program in March 1993. He was later deputy director of RKK Energia. Kubasov seems to have cheated death twice during his space career. He was part of the crew that was originally intended to fly Soyuz 2, which was found to have the same faulty parachute sensor that resulted in Vladimir Komarov's death on Soyuz 1 and was later launched without a crew. Later, he was grounded for medical reasons before the Soyuz 11 flight, which killed the crew when the capsule was accidentally depressurised by a faulty valve. Good condition Est. £20 - 30

Nice early image of the Fab Four on the cover. Numbered out of 100 issued to reverse with nice Beatles Facts information below. Randolph Peter Best is an English musician who was the drummer for The Beatles from 1960 to 1962. He was dismissed immediately prior to the band achieving worldwide fame and is one of several people who have been referred to as a fifth Beatle. Best's mother, Mona Best (1924 1988), opened the Casbah Coffee Club in the cellar of the Bests' house in Liverpool. The Beatles (at the time known as the Quarrymen) played some of their first concerts at the club. The Beatles invited Best to join the band on 12 August 1960, on the eve of the group's first Hamburg season of club dates. Ringo Starr eventually replaced Best on 16 August 1962 when the group's manager, Brian Epstein, fired Best at the request of John Lennon, Paul McCartney, and George Harrison following the band's first recording session. Over 30 years later, Best received a major monetary payout for his work with the Beatles after the release of their 1995 compilation of their early recordings on Anthology 1; Best played the drums on 10 of the album's tracks, including the Decca auditions. After working in several commercially unsuccessful groups, Best gave up being in the music industry to work as a civil servant for 20 years before starting the Pete Best Band. 207 - WW2 ace Capt Eric Winkle Brown DSO DFC signed hardback Book Duels in the Sky. WW2 Capt Eric Winkle Brown DFC AFC signed scarce loose Hawker Typhoon Royal Aircraft Establishment Biography Card. 7 x 5 inch special edition Printed card with border. Captain Eric Melrose Winkle Brown, CBE, DSC, AFC, Hon FRAeS (21 January 1920 - 21 February 2016) was a British Royal Navy officer and test pilot who flew 487 types of aircraft, more than anyone else in history. Brown held the world record for the most aircraft carrier deck take offs and landings performed (2,407 and 2,271 respectively) and achieved several firsts in naval aviation, including the first landings on an aircraft carrier of a twin engined aircraft, an aircraft with a tricycle undercarriage, a jet aircraft, and a rotary wing aircraft. Brown flew almost every category of Royal Navy and Royal Air Force aircraft: glider, fighter, bomber, airliner, amphibian, flying boat and helicopter. During the Second World War, he flew many types of captured German, Italian, and Japanese aircraft, including new jet and rocket aircraft. He was a pioneer of jet technology into the postwar era. This is a classic book by Britain's best test pilot and the man who has flown more types of aircraft than any other. The book briefly tells the story of naval aviation in WWII there is not much new in this part, but the information holds the narrative together nicely. There are black and white illustrations which are satisfactory, but this is clearly not a modern book. The book is worth buying for two reasons one is that aircraft are compared in a combat scenario in its historical setting rather than a simplistic top trumps approach. The other is that Captain Brown often flew the planes and when he says that a Corsair is no match for a FW190 (you would not think so from the performance statistics) he can add I have flown both aircraft many times. The book is brief, and I read it in a couple of hours. Some readers will not agree with Captain Brown's views (and he has not much to say about the mighty P 47 Thunderbolt) but readers with sufficient expertise to argue will still find much to educate and enjoy. There are some minor technical errors in the book and Captain Brown seems more impressed by an eight machine gun armament than modern authors. The book (first published in 1988) is now dated modern texts often have better presented data and this book is thin on graphs and performance envelopes etc. The book also predates the high fidelity combat flight simulations that are available for the enthusiast. Brown's review of these would a have been a revelation! A reader needs at least some familiarity with aircraft to get the most out of the book otherwise they will find some terms used baffling. Apart from these quibbles, the book was just a joy. Good condition Est. £20 - 30
